

INTRODUCTION

Compiled at the end of September 1981, this catalogue details items released or in production at that date.

From an essentially "one-off" release (Buzzcocks' "Spiral Scratch" e.p.) New Hormones has steadily expanded its scope and range of activities to include a varied number of musics, artists and presentations.

Coincidentally, developments in modern biochemistry have widened the range of understanding of human metabolism, most recently with the discovery of melatonin, the hormone secretion of the pineal gland.

The exact function of melatonin is yet to be established, as is fitting - otherwise it wouldn't be a new hormone. But it is, it does work, and has been for some time.

As have we, at New Hormones. And our exact function? Well, that has yet to be established, also.

Such as it is, here is evidence of our activity.

It is, it does work, and has been for some time.

All enquiries are welcomed.

Trade enquirers, take note - New Hormones products are available through the UK independent wholesale network and from domestically-based exporters. Prices and terms are available on request - these are subject to revision, and to negotiation. At any one time, current catalogue charges will apply while back-catalogue prices may be subject to reduction or revision. Please contact us or your direct dealer for details.

Consumers, please remember that whilst artist/label information (plans, activities, etc.) is readily available, a stamped self-addressed envelope or an International Reply Coupon is helpful.

For further information contact:

NEW HORMONES, 50 NEWTON STREET, MANCHESTER M1 2EA

tel: (061) 236 9849